ENERGEIA FOR TEENS

Energeia

is a Greek word used by Aristotle to describe the demonstration of inner character in deeds. It is goodness plus efficiency; it is focused, purposeful, meaningful, effective, energetic action.

Molloy College invites you to join Energeia for Teens, a Long Island high school student leadership and community service-learning program now in its eleventh year. Energeia for Teens participants select focus areas that concern them, and use their problem-solving skills to develop and implement creative local community service projects. Build your leadership skills, be part of a team engaged in civic issues, and make new friends from across Long Island.

Topics have included: Teen driver safety, bullying, suicide prevention, health and wellness, substance abuse, poverty, and the environment.

Feedback from our Participants:

"Energeia for Teens was a life-changing experience. It taught me how to venture out into my community and use my potential to really make a difference."

"I was able to develop my teamwork skills and learn how to effectively communicate with my peers."

"I learned what steps are needed to accomplish a project goal."
